Jackson Highway Through County

On Thursday afternoon a meeting was held before the board of supervisors of Noxubee county to settle definitely the route to be taken by the Jackson Highway through this county. There are three routes proposed, the western, the central and the eastern route. The western route is to come down the Mobile & Ohio railroad on the west side of the road and crossing at Brooksville. The central route is to follow the M. & O. railroad on the eastern side of the road, coming from Crawford to Brooksville, thence to Macon, along the Macon and Brooksville road. The eastern route is to follow the old Columbus-Macon road from Columbus through the Deer Creek neighborhood to Macon.

Speeches were made in favor of these various routes—George Richardson for the central route, A. T. Dent for the eastern route and Charles Strong for the western route. Mr. Gus Howser, civil engineer, who has been employed by this county on several construction works, as well as by Lowndes and Kemper counties, was in attendance.

Highway Meeting in Columbus

Everything is in readiness for the big meeting of the Jackson Military Highway Association which will be held in Columbus Thursday, May 11, says a Columbus dispatch. Representatives from every county traversed by the highway from Nashville to Logtown in the extreme southern portion of Mississippi will be on hand with definite reports of just what has been accomplished in their respective counties.

The meeting will be presided over by J. C. Simpson of Florence, Ala., president of the association.

Thomas J. Locke, Jr., executive committeeman of the association for Mississippi, reported today that the matter of connecting routes between Lowndes county and Noxubee county had been adjusted, thus insuring a fine road from the Alabama state line through Lowndes and Noxubee to the Kemper county line on the south.

The Uprising Suppressed

The surrender of the Irish revolutionaries, leaders and rank and file, after a "rebellion" of less than a week, serves to prove the accuracy of John Redmond's interpretation of the movement. It represented but an insignificant numerical element of the Irish people—a part of the same element which has fought the home rule movement—and had but a feeble reflection in the country outside of Dublin, the heart and center of the Sinn Féin sedition.

The great mass of the Irish people refused to be drawn in. They knew that, even if successful temporarily, it must have proved disastrous eventually, and over and above this merely material consideration, they felt that to strike at the empire from within when 200,000 Irishmen were at the front fighting desperately to save it from its enemies without was to be guilty of an act smacking of treachery.

Now that the rebellion has been crushed and it has been shown to have been participated in by so negligible a percentage of the Irish people, it is for England to temper justice with mercy in dealing with the misguided participants and to make it clear that the sorry affair shall abate in no way the pledge to concede to Ireland her well-earned right to self-government when the war ends.

Nothing less will suffice to pay back the debt which the Empire owes to the gallant Irish regiments which have fought with such salient valor on the battlefields of France and Gallipoli—nothing will do more to appease American sentiment which has been influenced against England in the past largely by reason of her injustices to Ireland.—States.

Williams Without Opposition

Senator John Sharp Williams will have no opposition for re-election this year. His unanimous re-election will be a fitting compliment to him and one he has deserved by his hard work and splendid leadership in the senate. The Senator does not always agree with Senator Williams but fully recognizes his ability and is glad to support him for re-election.—Ripley Sentinel.

The friends and supporters of Senator Williams are gratified to read this statement from Editor A. C. Anderson, who is and has been for years one of the leaders of the Bilbo and Vardaman political faction in Mississippi. It is indeed the proper compliment to pay Mr. Williams by re-electing him to the United States Senate without opposition.—Greenwood Commonwealth.

Five years ago, after his open opposition to the Bilbo-Vardaman ticket, there was but one question with the faction as to Senator Williams, and that was as to who they would run against him. There was no dispute of his superior ability, or the distinction he had achieved in congress. That was as well recognized then as now. This would, with the fading out of factional firm have, in all probability, secured his re-election to the Senate over any opponent. But there is an especial meaning, it is assumed, in such a call for his unanimous re-election. This is due in large part to the position Mr. Williams has taken as the leading supporter in the Senate of the President. And this signifies the popularity of the President—the strong approval of his actions and policies by the people of the state. Nor would it be assuming too much to claim that his able and constant champion owes some of his growth in popular favor to the irritation aroused by the contrasted course of his colleague, Senator Vardaman.—Vicksburg Herald.

"I don't expect to live long now," said Sir Roger, as the British force seized him. The long or short life of this "rash intruding fool" is of the least possible consequence, by comparison with the hurt he has done Ireland—the sacrifice of the many he has led to their doom. In the past the Irish leaders who have revolted and gone to the scaffold or redress of Ireland's wrongs, have left behind them a patriot name and the tears of posterity. But not so Sir Roger Casement. The best men of the island, and of all classes and creeds, will unite in denouncing him as a wretched traitor—a German tool who has struck a deadly blow at the partly achieved and heretofore assured out of Irish home rule.—Vicksburg Herald.

An old time Southern gentleman was discussing the high cost of living with a friend a few days ago, when the advance in the price of sugar was mentioned by the friend. The old Southern gentleman was not deeply impressed, merely remarking that he had lost all interest in sugar and the mint bed since the prohibitionists had secured a strangle hold on the liquor question. A quart every two weeks was from his viewpoint not worth a gentleman's attention.—Ex.

Stock Raisers' Association

The regularly monthly meeting of the Noxubee County Stock Raisers' Association was held in Macon last Monday. Routine matters were transacted. The principal matter of interest was the report of the committee who had in hand the securing from the Mobile & Ohio Railroad care-takers' passes, that is free transportation for the person going along with shipments of cattle to take care of them during the trip. The committee's correspondence with the road was read. It seems that such a practice is general in the North and on many of the railroads in the South, and is mutually beneficial, and a very great help and encouragement to stock raisers. But the M. & O. turned the proposition down. A prominent member of the association was quite caustic in his comment on the railroad's course. He said it was spending lots of money in field extension work, or claiming to, and advertising the resources of this section, yet when it comes to extending a really helping hand, there's nothing doing. That no proposition, however good, if it comes from the farmer, ever gets by with the railroad.

Youth

Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind. It is not a matter of red cheeks, red lips, and supple knees; it is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions. It is the freshness of the deep springs of life.

Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure over the love of ease. This often exists in a man of fifty more than in a boy of twenty.

Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years. People grow old only by deserting their ideals.

Years wrinkle the skin; but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul. Worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear and despair—these are the long, long years that bow the heart and turn the growing spirit back to dust.

Whether sixty or sixteen, there is in every human being's heart the lure of wonder, the sweet amazement at the stars and at starlike things and thoughts, the undaunted challenge of events, the unfailing childlike appetite for what next, and the joy of the game of living. You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope, as old as your despair.

In the central place of your heart is an evergreen tree; its name is Love. So long as it flourishes you are young. When it dies you are old. In the central place of your heart is a wireless station. So long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer, grandeur, courage and power from God and from your fellowmen, so long are you young.—Ex.

You have probably observed that the doctor who is constantly warning you against germs does not object to taking an old and greasy $20 bill in payment for his services.

An eastern chemist says he has found a way to make automobile fuel from water, but it is well to remember that there are some remarkable liars in the east.

Considering the character and volume of the language that is poured into the ears of a baby the greatest wonder is that it ever learns to talk English.

The fact that many men are attracted by second-hand goods may explain why so many widows have no trouble in getting married again.

The only safe prediction to make concerning the war in Europe is that it will come to an end just as soon as it is over.

General Grant said "Let us have peace," but he was not the sort of man who wanted it at any price.

Stevenson's Evening Prayer

We ran across a bit of Stevenson's writing the other day—an evening prayer written no doubt when he dwelt in the island of Samoa and had as guests friends of various races. It is worthy of repetition:

"We beseech Thee, Lord, to behold us with favor, folk of many families and nations, gathered together in the peace of this roof. Be patient still; suffer us awhile longer to endure, and (if it may be) help us to do better. Bless to us our extraordinary mercies.

"Be with our friends; be with ourselves. Go with each of us to rest. If any awake temper to them the dark hours of watching, and when the day returns to us call us up with morning faces and with morning hearts—eager to labor—eager to be happy, if happiness shall be our portion, and, if the day be marked in sorrow, strong to endure it."
